Q.No.	Sub. Sec.	Question Description	Marks
1.		Read the case and answer to the given question: Cathy, a 45 year old Russian immigrant, had metastatic breast cancer. Her doctor determined that her cancer would no longer respond to chemotherapy, and told her (via an interpreter) that she was "terminal." He recommended that she go to a "hospice" facility. Following this her health quickly deteriorated. She later told her social worker, "When my daughter translated what 'terminal' meant and I realized that I was going to die, I felt the doctor killed me." She explained that a Russian doctor would never directly tell a patient she was going to die. His informing her directly was, to her, a death sentence. She also had no idea what the words "hospice" and "terminal" meant, but was afraid to ask. Question: Examine the case, and through Cross-cultural communication view points, explain in about 200 words.	10
